Wild Horses and Burros on public land are in danger. They are caught in a system that needs serious reform. Through documentation and accurate information, we can create the changes these symbols of our American Heritage need to survive.

Issues as basic as humane treatment are often raised. We need your help, to help them.

Many of these acts are hidden from public scrutiny. Effort is made to keep the public and press away from meaningful observation at roundups. Our horses are then taken to facilities where often these facilities are locked away entirely from public view. Laura Leigh, Director of Wild Horse Education, has filed a lawsuit as a journalist to protect your right to know and STOP the secrecy. Leigh has been to more roundups than any government personnel in the last year. Her documentation has been vital to educating the public to the truth. The First Amendment lawsuit and documentation efforts are supported by Wild Horse Education.

Vist WildHorseEducation.org to learn more about YOUR wild horses and burros and how YOUR tax money is spent in the current process of removing YOUR horses off YOUR public lands.

With your help we can expose the truth and create a better future for our symbol of American Freedom.
